Places We Learn In

Some places help us learn new things. We can learn in different places—inside and outside, quiet and busy, big and small.

> Learning happens everywhere when we look, listen, and talk together.

Talk with an adult: Have you been to any places like these before?
Which place would you like to talk about?

A School

This is a school.

Some schools have a nursery inside them where younger children go to learn and play.

Children learn and play at school every day. They make friends, discover new things, and have lots of fun together.

Teachers help children to learn.

Talk with an adult: What do children do at school? What would you like to do there?

Inside the School

Inside a school, there are rooms for learning. Each room is filled with things that help children learn and grow.

Books

Stories and pictures to read together

Tables

Places to sit, draw, and work

Toys

Things to play with and explore

Talk with an adult: What can you see inside? What would you like to play with or look at?

The Library

This is a library.

A library is a special place with lots and lots of books.
A library has more books than you can count!

People go to the library to borrow books, read stories, and discover new adventures.

Some libraries have story time where everyone sits together and listens to tales.

Talk with an adult: Have you ever been to a library?
What would you like to read about in a library?

Inside the Library

Inside a library, people look at books. It is often a quiet place where we use soft voices so everyone can read and think.

You might see people sitting in cosy chairs, children choosing picture books, or someone helping you find just the right story.

A library is quiet place

Talk with an adult: What do people do here?
Why do you think it's quiet?

The Museum

This is a museum.

A museum is a place where we look at interesting things from a long, long time ago—sometimes even from thousands of years ago!

Museums help us learn about history, nature, art, and so much more. Each object has a story to tell.

Talk with an adult: What do you think you might see at a museum?
What would you like to learn about?

Learning at Home

We can learn at home too! Home is a wonderful place for learning. Every day at home is full of chances to discover something new.

We learn when we look, listen, and talk. We learn when we help, play, and try new things. Learning at home happens in the kitchen, the garden, the bedroom—everywhere!

Learning is everywhere: Cooking together, reading stories, building with blocks, singing songs, or simply talking about your day—these are all ways we learn at home.

Talk with an adult: What would you like to learn at home? What have you learnt today?

Learning Together

Looking

We notice things around us—colours, shapes, and new discoveries

Listening

We hear stories, sounds, and ideas that help us understand

Talking

We share what we think and ask questions together

We often learn with other people—teachers, family, carers and friends. Learning together makes it more fun!

Talk with an adult: Who do you like learning with, or would you like to learn with someone at home?

Learning together with family

Think about your own learning places. You could say:

'I learn here.'

'I would like to learn here.'

Talk with an adult: Talk about a place you learn in or a place you would like to learn in.

What makes it special to you?

What would you like to learn there?
